"The Song of Bernadette"

Warren Players have chosen for their second production of the 1958-59 season Franz Werfel's best-selling novel, "The Song of Bernadette". The performance will be staged in the Woman's Club auditorium Thursday and Friday evenings, December 4 and 5.

The story is of a little French girl who becomes a Saint and is based upon the lives of actual persons and events in Lourdes, France. It is being produced under the direction of Joanne Roberts.

Reservations for the play can now be made by mailing membership cards (in a stamped, self-addressed envelope) to Warren Players, Box 563, Warren. Designate the night desired.

Pictures on this page were taken during rehearsal of the play this week and announce some of the cast members.

ASIDES

SEEK BACK WAGES

Employees who have been underpaid a total of $196,000 in Western Pennsylvania will get theirs if United States investigators can collect it. The money is due for overtime, payments under the legal minimum, and illegal child labor. Usually the employees come through with a check and without court action when the labor, wage and hour division boys face them.

MAJOR LIFE-SAVER

Possibly the biggest, and certainly one of the greatest strides in medical progress is to be seen in the reductions in the death toll among women during pregnancy. It has dropped 93 per cent in forty years, from 61 deaths per 10,000 live births in 1915 to 4.3 deaths in 1957.

Last year 4,200,000 babies were born in the United States. There were 1,600 maternal deaths. Even a generation ago the number would have been 28,000!

RECORD TAX MAILING

The Pittsburgh office of the Internal Revenue Service is mailing out a record 1,338,650 tax returns this December. There will be little change in Form 1040, but Form 1040A will be altered. One major exception is that most taxpayers with incomes less than $10,000 can use the simple card form. The former limit was $5,000. Forms will not be available locally until mid-January.

FORD HUSTLES

The challenge of small cars and foreign importations has moved Ford to take a small step in that direction. It is bringing out the Galaxie, which is priced about $48 higher than the Fairlane and is styled after the Thunderbird. It is a luxury model to beat the price of competing luxury lines, and has all standard models plus a retractable hardtop.

THE PIRATES SIGN

The Pittsburgh baseball club has signed a contract for 1959 broadcasting. Mutual is the medium.

ANOTHER MINIMUM WAGE

A minimum wage rate of 75 cents, to become 80 cents in six months, has been recommended by the Laundry and Dry Cleaning Minimum Wage board, and has been tentatively accepted by the Secretary of Labor William L. Batt, Jr. The rate falls far short of the accepted living minimums paid by other industries and action to gain new increases can be expected.

HAVE FUN

A toy grenade that explodes five seconds after pulling the pin has been added to the Christmas shopping list. All families might save one to quickly bring down the Christmas tree, and it is a dandy practical joke to use on your battle-conditioned, veteran friends... if you don't mind losing your friends.

DEADLINE EXTENDED

The expansion of social security to reach many who formerly were not covered has not been utilized by some. An example is found in the ministry. They were supposed to file a waiver certificate before April 15, 1957. Many failed to do so. This deadline has been extended for those who failed to protect themselves and now wish they had. The new date is April 15, 1959, and the waiver will be effective for the taxable year 1956 and years thereafter in which the minister's net earnings have been at least $400.

SPECIAL RATES

Church, college, school, social and civic groups which would like to attend the 70th annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" in the Pittsburgh Syria Mosque, December 9, may enjoy special rates of 85 cents to $1.25. Group orders now are being received at the Pittsburgh Symphony's office, 1305 Farmer's Bank Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Featured will be the 90-member Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra, the 400-voice Mendelssohn Choir, and leading soloists such as David Lloyd, Sarah Fleming, Donald Gramm, and Carol Smith.

MORE FOR GAS

If plans now in the making go through we will be paying more for two kinds of gas, that which heats your home and the kind which moves your car. Washington GOP leaders are talking about increased gasoline taxes to meet the recession deficit. And the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company is seeking higher

...WOMEN, TOO

What kind of men? What kind of women? The answer is easy. Telephone men. Telephone women. "Obviously," you say. And in a sense, you're right. But maybe if we go a little farther...

Dedicated might sound as though we're exaggerating. People generally think of missionaries, doctors, clergymen and others in the professions as dedicated. Not usually would operators, cable splicers, service representatives, installers or telephone engineers come to mind.

Let's look at a few other words that you may even have thought of yourself in connection with Bell people—conscientious, skilled, courteous. On them we just refuse to back down.

One more thing—Bell people are service minded people... right on down the line... and very proud of it. They've made your telephone service the best in the world... at a cost that has consistently kept it one of the best values in your budget. They will continue to keep it that way.

Come to think of it, maybe dedicated isn't too strong a word after all.

Observations

By Bob Walsh

TO BE OR NOT TO BE

That is the question . . . and the question is, to be or not to be fluoridated. If you want to generate heat, discuss fluoridation or religion. The furnace can expire and no one will notice.

The line forms on the left and faces a line on the right. On the one side are the professional pamphleteers who love issues which ingender irrationalism. They drop the word "poison", find some medical men who don't like the idea, infiltrate it with communism, dam it with wealth-seeking capitalists who must control all who want their teeth saved, and sell thousands of pamphlets to those who are prone to excitement.

And squaring off with the opposing line-up are all of the major medical, dental, and research groups which say one millionth part of sodium fluoride in your drinking water will neither soften your brain, harden your bones, or ruin your bowels.

These are the same people who prescribe for us daily when we are ill. But suddenly they are suspect and know nothing about medicine, health, or the way of an ion . . . whether it be sodium fluoride, sodium silicofluoride, hydro silicic acid, or in whatever form you choose to eliminate sixty per cent of your dental bill.

In the middle sits the public, the borough council, and the editor.

Always you hear of vague hamlets in faraway places which either stopped using this method of fighting caries, or are proof that it is best. The fact is that about half the population of Pennsylvania now served by public water supplies is drinking water which includes this protective chemical. Is there a great wasting away of Pennsylvanians in the throes of fluoridational maladies?

We're just asking . . . and seeking.

We have heard it suggested that the manufacturers of aluminum might be the evil men behind this scheme to "force fluoride down your neck", as it has been so unlovingly put by some. It is added that fluoride compounds used for this tooth-saving process are by-products of aluminum plants.

Anyone who has read our Buyers column would not be alarmed by this statement. Many fast-talkers who have gathered the ladies together in a neighborly fashion within the confines of area homes have attacked aluminum in an effort to sell their own wares. The Federal Trade Commission has prosecuted many of them for such false statements and it certainly has been demonstrated in American kitchens that aluminum utensils are not reducing our population.

The fact is that fluoride compounds used for water fluoridation are not a by-product of aluminum plants. But the misunderstanding can be traced to the fact that the Aluminum Company of America does produce sodium fluoride in a special plant for that purpose, just as is done by others who are not in the aluminum business.

Diversification is very common in today's industry and you will find most major corporations involved in a wide variety of productions.

You can go down the line in this fashion for pages of paragraphs. You could spend a year writing to the many individuals, towns, hospitals, and organizations which are quoted as having reasons for or against. Too many of the references are limited and do not reveal the entire opinion of the ones quoted.

For example, those who oppose fluoridation will say that certain food and drink makers will not use such water. At the same time we find food and drink producers using the water successfully and we note that the American Institute of Baking, the American Institute of Canning, and the American Society of Brewing Chemists are among those who favor fluoridation.

It has been described as socialized medicine. No one has taken more narrow stands against socialized medicine than the American Medical Association and other medical groups. Yet these major medical organizations now are approving fluoridation.

It is said that it causes cancer. This is denied by the American Cancer Society, which has approved fluoridation.

"Fear" is the word that is playing the major role in this dispute. Fear has been placed in the minds of many through numerous statements which are not well founded, and perhaps through some that are correct in themselves but which do not apply to the drinking of water of which only one millionth part is fluoride.

As for this editor he is willing to accept the word of his doctor. It has been our experience that the doctors are a very conservative group and are extremely slow about approving new ideas. In fact have fought new procedures that were beneficial because they insisted on long-range proof.

When they favor a preventive measure we are convinced that such a decision is based on much research. If we are not to believe our scientists and our doctors, the corner drug store is no place for us.

But each has a right to his own conclusion and for that reason we hope to offer additional information as the weeks go by. But do not bother us with pamphlets. We won't use them. We will do our own research and our own investigating. And we will share what we learn.

Meanwhile, the Warren council has a decision to make. Some councilmen already are so prejudiced they can not approach the subject objectively. We will not be surprised if they fail to make a decision and vote to leave it up to their constituents by placing it on the ballot.

This is passing the buck. If council is concerned with the rights of the minority it will not settle this through a referendum. It will only prove what we already know . . . there is a minority. There always is.

There is just one wish we have to make. Warren and Warren county has many issues, as this editor can assure you. We wish there were as much concern and as much interest in some other public problems as there is exhibited in the millionth part of a glass of water.

We would not have to worry about adequate auditoriums, adequate schools, the best of ambulance service, flood control, poor library service, civilian defense, better pure food laws, improved fire and police protection, a truly free press, civil rights, juvenile delinquency, impure air, cancer through cigarettes, one-party political control, limited recreation facilities, fair taxes, war, and peace . . . to name just a few.

We didn't see forty irate citizens at the joint area school board meeting demanding an adequate auditorium. Yet we have had many calls urging us to fight for one.

We are afraid that the word "poison" has been built up to over-large proportions, and that too much fear has been developed for sane thinking. It has reached the stage where it is not the caries about which we are concerned but the hara-kiri which some are convinced we are committing.

The Japanese actually call it seppuku, suggesting that even in a play on words there is little relationship.

EXPENSIVE BREAK

We recently read an article which revealed how much lack of courtesy and consideration for others was costing us. It was pointed out that five extra minutes at the coffee-break, multiplied by the number of employees and again multiplied by the number of work days added up to a very large time cost.

But whether or not employers wish to quibble about the minutes for which they pay, the coffee break has contributed to one very large bill that is growing annually. That is the cost of the drink itself.

Coffee sales are up ten million cups. That is per day! We now are drinking 380 million cups a day. The increase spans only one year. We are drinking 90 million cups more a day than in 1950!

TOO BAD

The magazine Popular Mechanics is reported to be changing hands. Hearst is mentioned as the possible purchaser. We think this is unfortunate because a magazine of this type could be of so much value if not a small cog in a major publishing machine.

SCREAM, THE PUBLIC SHOULD

In a recent paragraph somewhere in this paper we facetiously mentioned that in view of the government's ability to send a tv signal back from the moon the public which is stuck with poor separation on its radio dial and a limited selection of tv programs should be screaming.

Two young readers who are studying electronics write a letter in which they reveal, what we many times have mentioned, that radio and tv signals are complicated by intervening hills, thus the straight line from the moon is simpler than sending a signal around the curve of the earth.

They end their explanation by saying that "The public should not be screaming, but should be sitting back enjoying radio and TV, thinking about what a great invention it is."

The day the public does that, my young friends, we are licked. If the government can spend billions to get signals back from the moon, it also can do a much better job of improving our tv and radio reception, as this paper has emphasized many times.

FM and UHF are the step-children of the FCC. They have been given a rough time, and the result is that we are stuck with major networks which run the VHF and AM shows. And such areas as Warren are limited to a local station.

This is not to say we should eliminate local stations. We are very much for them, and in fact favor competition among them. But the AM dial on the average radio sold today is a noisy, intermingled conglomeration that actually is worse than it was twenty years ago.

Meanwhile, FM which provides much better tuning, greatly improved reception, and other advantages has been held back by government fumbling. The same goes for UHF in tv, and the viewer is going through the same restrictive phase he suffered in radio.

TV has proved that FM can be sent more than the twenty miles which was its limitation when used alone for radio work. If we could receive NBC, CBS, and other network top shows on FM radio the AM inadequacies would be eliminated.

It is apparent that the big operators in radio and in television and the major electronic manufacturers have given little encouragement to more stations and the means of keeping them alive. We have been over this one many a time in great detail. We only hope that the young minds of today are not complacently accepting what we have today as the best for tomorrow.

IT CAN BE DONE

American networks are so fearful of losing a small share of the audience that they have confined their major educational shows to such hours as 6:30 a.m. Many have wondered what would happen if they were to take one itty bitty chance with their billions and pitch a "think" show in a prime dollar hour.

It was tried in Mexico where an educational program teaching English was booked for 6 to 6:30 in the evening, a very much in the demand hour. The show caught fire and rates second in the nation topped only by Pedro Vargas, top man in Mexican tv circles, who might be compared with Ed Sullivan's show in this country.

The first two weeks of the show, 7,000 books had been ordered.

OVER-RICH

When tv commercials become so thick that even the leading advertising journals object the public can be expected to suffer. This occurred during the recent election night reports, when some critics said they were not sure who was running for office, nuts, cigarettes, or humans.

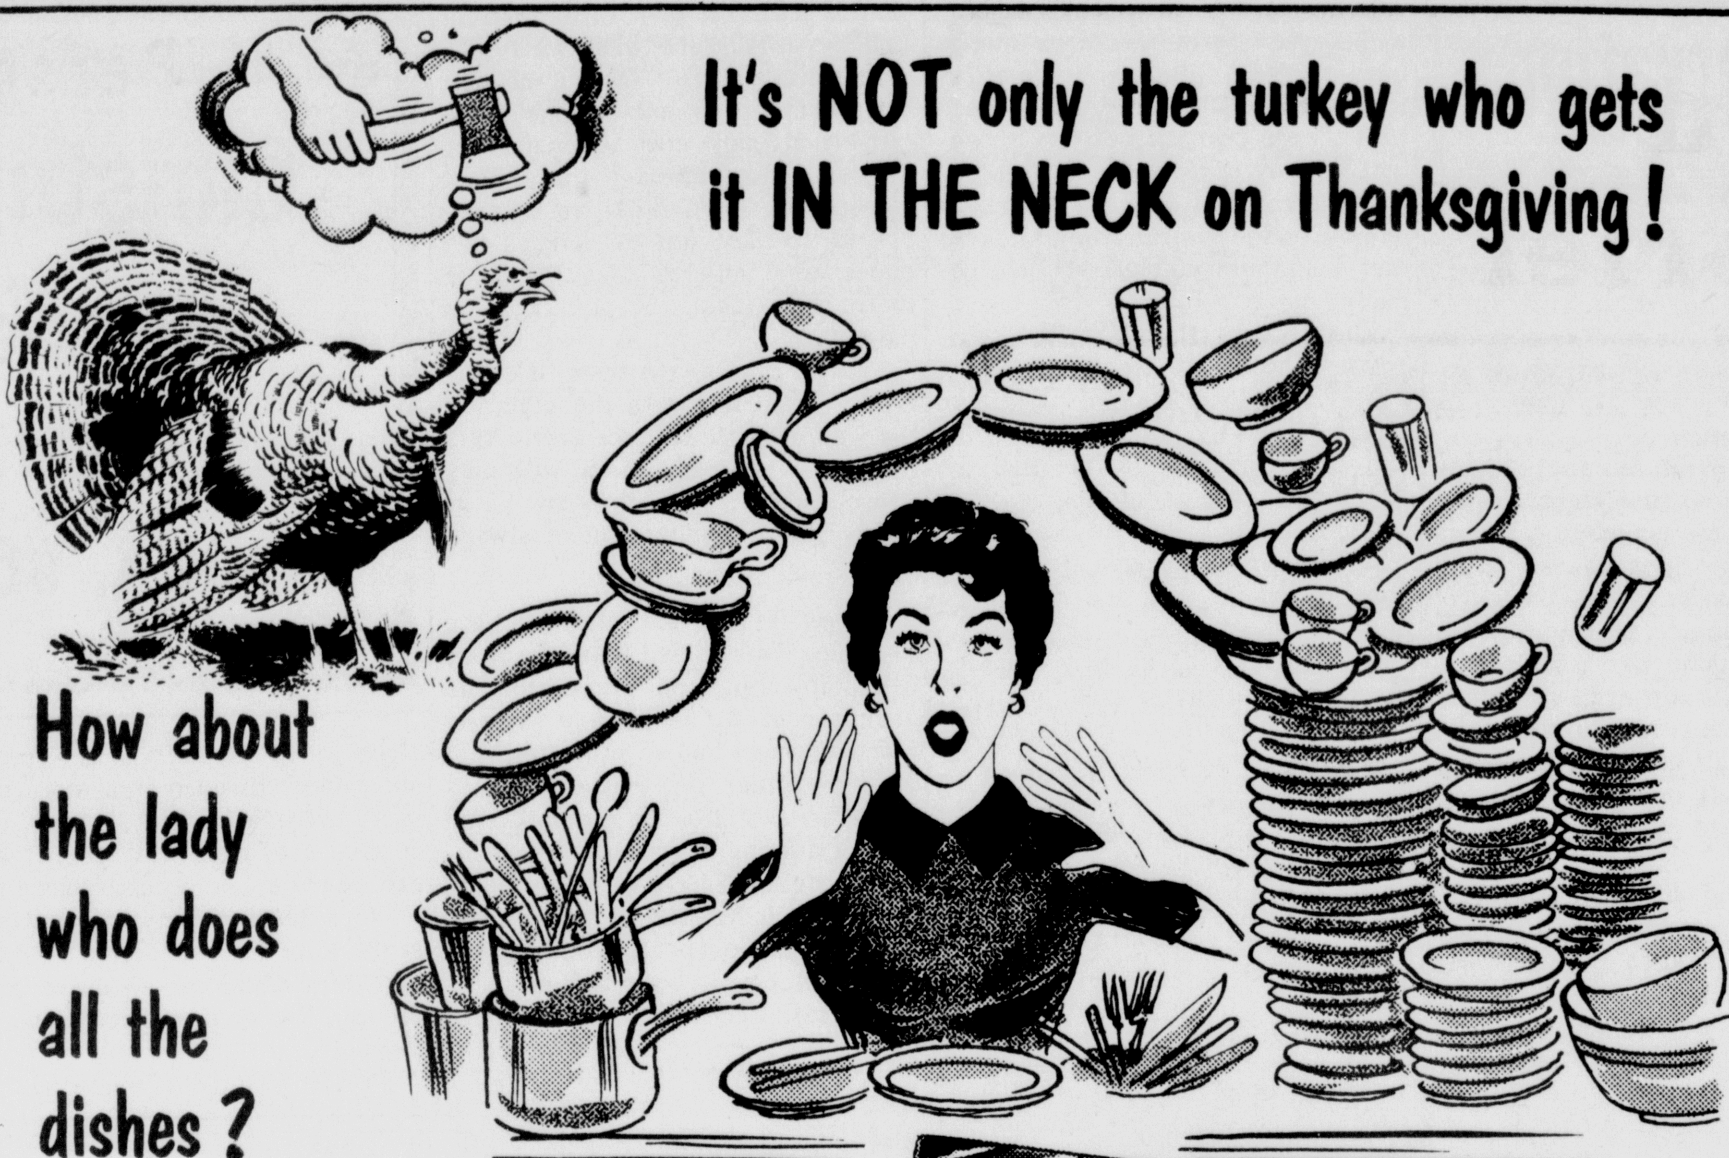

Adding weight to the complaints is the advertising spokesman, Printers Ink. It expresses the opinion that not enough restraint was shown by the advertisers on election night.

ONE IN EVERY POCKET

The biggest threat to television may be radio, and the comeback road may be by way of the listeners' pockets. It is anticipated that one hundred million pocket radios, many with clocks, will be carried by Americans within the next year. The car in every garage and the radio in every pocket combine to offer real competition for the potential buyer's ear.

In Brief

ABC TELEVISION programs for most of Warren county will start coming from Buffalo's new station, WKBW, Sunday, November 30, WGR which has been carrying some ABC programs despite its present affiliation with NBC, will drop all ABC presentations the last of next week.

The new station is located ten miles south of East Aurora, four miles south of the WBEN transmitter. How far the signal will carry will not be known until the tests are made and adjustments completed. The channel will be 7.

ACCEPTS NEW POST. Miss Claire Elliott, who has served on the staff of the Children's Aid Society (recently renamed Family Service and Children's Aid Society) for over 14 years, has submitted her resignation effective January 1 to accept the post of chief psychiatric social worker at the Ridgway Area Psychiatric Center.

Miss Elliott, now director of children services, received her master degree in social work from the University of Pittsburgh and her bachelor of science and education degree from the Pennsylvania State University. Prior to entering social work in Warren, she taught in both the borough and county schools.

The clinic to which Miss Elliott is going was only recently dedicated and is directed by Dr. Robert Dickinson, who was at one time affiliated with the Warren State Hospital.

BOROUGH POLICE reported no new developments in their investigation of the week-end burglary act at Morell's Restaurant at 42 Pennsylvania ave., E.

The avenue establishment was entered some time between 5 p.m. Sunday and 5:45 a.m. Monday when the break-in was discovered by Don Javens, 220 Canton st., an employee.

A gray metal cash box containing between $50 and $70 (mostly silver) was stolen by the thieves. It was taken from behind the back bar of the restaurant.

PURSE SNATCHER. The wave of burglaries and hold-ups that have been sweeping the area the past months had another characteristic added last Friday evening when a man snatched the purse of the Bradford Savings and Loan manager about 10 o'clock as she walked up Hertz st.

Victim of the stalker was Dorothy Allen, 20 Jackson st. She told police she heard someone hurrying up behind her and she tightened the grip on her purse. The man grabbed it, she stated further, and so doing knocked her to the ground. She suffered a fractured right clavicle and was admitted to the hospital.

The thief ran off between two homes with the purse which contained $50 in cash, a $50 check and some of the manager's personal belongings.

A $25 FINE and costs were paid by Edward W. Weiler, 62, of New York City, Tuesday after his arrest for leaving the scene of an accident without identifying himself.

Witnesses reported the city man to police shortly after 11 a.m. after he struck two parked cars in the vicinity of Second ave. and the high school parking lot. Weiler pulled into the lot and backed into a car owned by Jean Steele, 418 W. Third st., and then backed out into Second and hit the other vehicle owned by O.H. AND K. B. Schussler, 419 Pennsylvania ave., E. He was picked up on East st. near the Fourth ave. intersection. Damage amounted to about $130 to all three machines.

THREE-YEAR-OLD Roger Genberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldamere Genberg, 316 Pennsylvania ave., E., sustained bruises and contusions to the face at 12:50 p.m. Tuesday when he darted from between two parked cars on Elm st. and was struck by an auto driven by Howard C. Hulings, 207 Lexington ave.

CD AID. Youngsville received $1,194.97 and Sheffield twp. $473 for communications services last Friday when the state Civil Defense Council mailed checks throughout the Commonwealth under the Federal matching fund plan.

A DECISION regarding Solar Electric Corporation's proposed building expansion program is forthcoming from the Warren Board of Adjustment. The firm's plans ask for construction of a two-story building, addition of a second floor to a section of the present structure and off-street parking at the site on the corner of Central and Lincoln avenues.

The Board of Adjustment held a hearing on the issue Tuesday evening when a group of property owners appeared to protest the proposed expansion.

A SIX TO 12 MONTH sentence in the Allegheny Workhouse was suspended when Joseph Conklin, R. D. 2, Tidioute, appeared in Warren Co. Court Monday. He admitted being involved in a robbery and that he helped dispose of stolen goods. Conklin was fined $100 and costs, and placed on probation for six months.

VOD WINNERS. Winners of the Voice of Democracy contests in the respective county schools are Rebecca Morrison, Tidioute; Carolyn Moore, Sheffield; Sally Griggs, Eisenhower; and Linda Elliot, Warren. The county winner will be announced by sponsoring WNAE after each contestant's recordings are judged.

SIXTY-SEVEN CASES were reported under care in the October Warren Visiting Nurses' report. This figure included eight new cases.

DECORATING CONTEST. Plans to conduct an outdoor Christmas decorating contest again this year have been announced by the Warren Garden Club. All entries must be in by December 19 and may be submitted by filling out an entry blank which will be published.

Cash awards will be given first, second and third place winners. Displays will be judged on unity of theme, over-all design, and originality.

Mrs. Robert Voight is the general chairman.

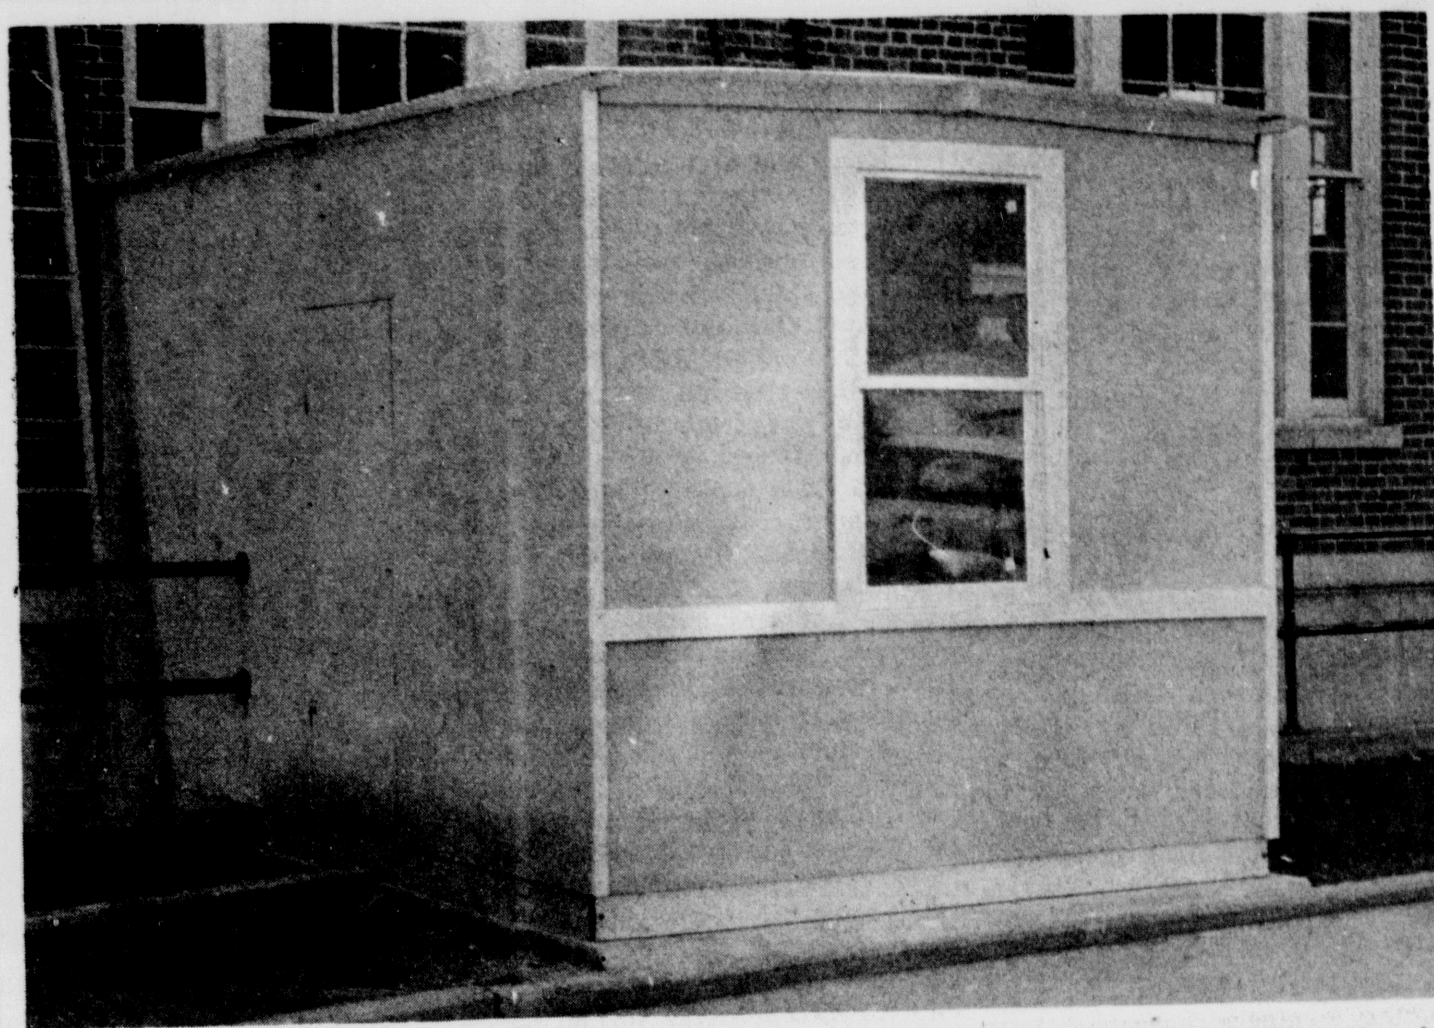

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS. Dr. Robert H. Israel, superintendent of the Warren State Hospital, has returned from Los Angeles where he was a featured speaker at the annual conference of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education. The administrator's paper was concerned with psychiatric training in mental hospitals as such training is organized for psychiatrists, social workers, nurses, technicians and other allied fields in the area.

In attendance at the 58th annual convention of the Pennsylvania Osteopathic Association in Philadelphia recently was Dr. Kenneth K. Gahring, of Warren.

Twenty-five years of service were observed November 20 by Mrs. Esther S. Lauffenburger, 217 Parker st., Warren, an operator of the Bell Telephone Co. Since joining the company in 1933 she has been affiliated with the traffic department.

POST OFFICE ANNEX. If you've been curious about that peculiar-looking appendage being constructed at the rear of the Warren Post Office, here's the answer: The Postmaster explains that this is to be a Drive-in Parcel Post Annex where patrons may mail Christmas packages without leaving their cars. It is believed this is the first such Drive-in arrangement to be attempted by a post office in the northern states.

The Drive-in Annex will be in operation only during the recommended mailing period prior to Christmas. Exact days and hours of operation will be announced later but it is certain that this convenience will be available only to early mailers. The extra expense of operation must be absorbed in the established budget for the Warren post office; therefore, it cannot be kept open for the last-minute mailers. Save yourself the time and bother of finding a parking space and the tedious waiting-in-line at the lobby windows.

Parcel post service only will be available at this Drive-in Annex. No stamps will be sold there. You should, therefore, lay in your supply of Christmas stamps well ahead of time. Right now is none too soon.

COLLEGE CHATTER. Named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" was Gordon N. Odmark, a music major at Grove City College. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Odmark, 224 N. Irvine st., Warren.

George Rasmussen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Rasmussen, 422 Conewango ave., Warren, has been inducted as a member of the Theta Phi chapter of Alpha Chi Rho fraternity, newest social group at Thiel College. A sophomore, young Rasmussen is a member of the varsity basketball team.

Janis Carlson has been elected president of Rochester Institute of Technology's Women's Residence, Kate Gleason Hall. A 1954 Warren high school graduate and a senior in RIT's Food Administration Department, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hazen Carlson, 218 Oneida ave., Warren.

ANNIVERSARY. The Beneficial Finance Co. of Warren celebrates its 30th anniversary Sunday. Located at 216 Liberty st., the office first opened its doors to the public in 1928. Present manager of the local office is John K. Skillen, who came here from Pittsburgh two years ago.

"REBEL WITHOUT A CAUSE" Fair!

... is the play being presented tonight (Thursday) and tomorrow evening by members of the Warren high school class of 1959. The story, by Dr. Robert Lindner, is under the direction of Richard Anderson, dramatics teacher. The play will be staged in Beaty auditorium at 8:00 o'clock.

The cast for this drama is as follows: Vincent Williams, Russ Rudolph, Dan Otterbein, Jim Eldridge, Pati O'Hara, Steve Pearson, Dotty Irwin, Al Lindgren, Bill Odell, Nanci Nichols, Nancy Armstrong.

Also Sandy Shirk, Carol Van Blois, Al Neilson, Jim Watt, Andy Peterson, Kathy Kehrli, Marge Rader, Martha Peed, Gene Erickson, Olivia Smith, Vince Williams, and Gene Erickson.

PLAN TO HAVE LUNCH ... on Wednesday, December 3, at the First Methodist church when the Allen Class puts on its fifty-cent lunch of home-made vegetable soup and home-made pie, in connection with their Annual Christmas Bazaar. Lunch starts at 11:30 a.m., and following lunch you can look over many articles on sale at the bazaar, which will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

You'll find many fascinating things: all kinds of aprons, fancy, plain, children's and even aprons for men! Many original novelty gifts for children, especially good for stocking gifts. There'll be a booth of knitted goods, a complete bake sale, and a section of home-made candy, attractively packaged.

IT'S FAIR TIME, COME ONE, COME ALL! ... The Pennsylvania Dutch Fair, sponsored by the Women's Association of the First Presbyterian Church is now in session. Today (Thursday) is the day, from 1 to 8 p.m. and there will be dinner servings at 5 and 6:30 p.m. Adults, $1.50, and children, under six years of age, 75 cents. Members invite you to "come to eat. Picturesque booths will offer a variety of articles for sale: Candy, home-cooked and baked foods, canned goods, aprons, antiques, Christmas novelties, decorations and favors. A new feature will be a basket booth. There will also be a Parcel Post booth and an attraction for the children, so bring the whole family and come to the

THE NEXT DRAMATIC PRODUCTION ... of Warren Players Club, slated for two public performances in the Woman's Club auditorium on the evenings of Thursday and Friday, December 4 and 5, is "The Song of Bernadette", a beautifully warm and human drama and well worth attending for that reason alone. The play was chosen for the December production of Warren Players for several reasons. It is a good play to usher in the Christmas season, for its theme, though religious in tone, has a broad non-sectarian appeal. The story was written by Werfel in a spirit of thankfulness after his escape from the Nazis. On reaching a haven in America he dedicated himself to fulfilling a vow he had made when he stopped at Lourdes and was deeply impressed by the legend of Bernadette. The story is based upon the lives of actual persons and events in Lourdes, France, and 1958 marks the one hundredth anniversary of the visions of the little French girl from Lourdes.

Members and friends are urged to plan now for a delightful evening out with the whole family on either of the nights designated. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Those interested are also advised active and associate memberships are still available and a great entertainment buy.

THE UNION THANKSGIVING Service ... in Warren will be held at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, November 26, in the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Gene Sackett will be the speaker.

A CHRISTMAS BAZAAR ... sponsored by Epsilon Epsilon Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, will be held tomorrow (Friday) in the YWCA, from 6 to 10 p.m., which is open to the public. Mrs. Lewis Conroy is chairman of the affair.

There will be aprons, candy, home-made doll clothes, doll basins, pot holders, and other home-made articles, also Christmas items of various descriptions. Cookies and coffee will be served during the evening.

OHI FOR A GOOSE!

When Governor Bradford splashed his quill across an official parchment back in 1621, a goose quill no doubt, he was giving the United States the bird for centuries to come. So big did the idea go over that his one-day celebration fell far short of the demand and the Pilgrims continued to whoop it up for three.

Some of this may have been a hang-over from the fresh vegetable, deer, fish, and feathered meat bloat, and there was corn involved. But we are sure that the men and women must have been sincerely thankful, not only that they were alive and eating, but that their Indian neighbors were joining in and were killing meat for the table rather than them.

The idea actually was not a new one to their guests. The Indians had been observing a harvest festival along the eastern seaboard for many seasons. They called it the green corn dance. And we can't imagine anything that would make you do a livelier dance than green corn.

The Pilgrims were not intentionally establishing an annual event, in fact they were very much opposed to such holidays and refused to observe Christmas and Easter. They called religious holidays of the Church of England "Roman corruptions".

The Pilgrims chose to give thanks only when they thought they were due. They saw no reason for thanking the Almighty if he gave them a lean year in the field.

But other early settlers liked the idea and the fall continued to be a period of celebration. If it were a bad year they could use it to help forget their troubles, or to pray for better times.

The first effort to make Thanksgiving a national holiday had nothing to do with the successful harvest or the weight of the banquet table. It was proposed as a means of giving thanks for the Constitution.

It was opposed because the early states-rights thought the federal government was meddling in local affairs. Thanksgiving as a success leans heavily on the stomach, however, Mrs. Sarah Hale, a food book concocter, spent thirty years promoting the idea for obviously material reasons.

Abraham Lincoln bucked slavery in the South and New England Puritans in the North by adding a Thanksgiving proclamation to his collection of troubles. He set aside the last Thursday in November of 1863 for this epicurean pleasure. The Puritans continued to look to the Deity rather than Washington for their inspiration, and if their source of worship failed them they refused to listen to Lincoln.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt gave the merchants a lift in their Christmas promotion by moving Thanksgiving ahead a week. It also provided a longer rest for the duodenums and comforted the purse. But three years of this was enough and congress stepped into the act by saying we should give thanks and stuff our stuffing on the fourth Thursday.

Thanksgiving has had a rough time, in view of which there are those who suggest we now should give thanks for Thanksgiving. But this might not go for some old friends who abide near and around us. The gobbler has become a major part of this festivity. Which is an inclusive thought that incorporates both he who gobbles and the gobbled.

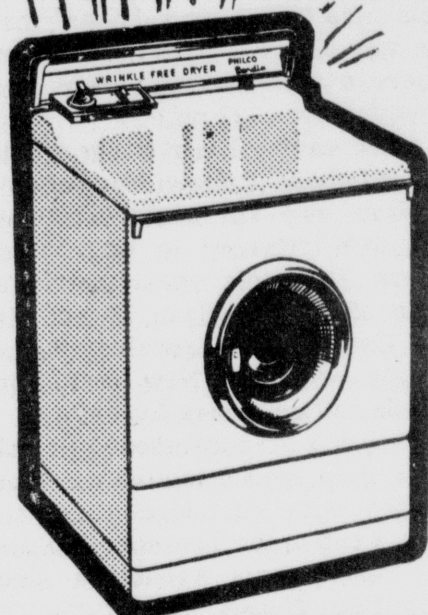

The turkey not only became the symbol of Thanksgiving's groaning table, but also for many years was the prestige de le jour (the French is ours, and bad, but the bird was good) and proud was the boy who could say his family was devouring a turk while the neighbors were mean with chicken, rabbits, or even ham!

This big bird has resisted extinction despite a popularity which is best depicted by the common work of art, annually pictured, that has him chased by a human with axe in hand. There was money in those big legs and the white meat above them.

The result is a commercialized promotion that has made turkey as common in summer as in the fall, and it no longer is the most expensive food on the table. In fact it is cheaper than most.

The time has come when a big turkey planted in the midst of the Thanksgiving fodder and ready for slicing is neither timely nor a rarity. People who prefer chicken are not hesitant or ashamed to so state, before, during, or after, and lucky

TREASURY AGENT:

Officeholder, Not The Man, Incites Fanatics To Murder Presidents, History Shows

This is the 11th of 12 articles taken from "Treasury Agent," just published by Simon and Schuster, Inc., and written by Andrew Tully, well-known newspaperman.

BY ANDREW TULLY

OSCAR COLLAZO, the slender, olive-skinned Puerto Rican who tried to kill Harry S. Truman on November 1, 1950, summed it up for all the mental invalids who have gone gunning for occupants of the White House.

"I didn't come here to kill Mister Truman, I came to kill the President of the United States," Collazo told Secret Service Agent Joseph J. Ellis during a conversation in a Washington jail cell in early 1951.

Other men who have killed, or tried to kill, a President of the United States undoubtedly would have signed their names to the sentiment expressed by Collazo. History has shown that it is the officeholder, not the man, who incites the assassin. Former Presidents always have been able to walk the streets safely, their existence ignored by the fanatic once they walk out of the White House for the last time.

It was February 15, 1933, and a warm breeze gentled the Miami evening. More than 1,000 persons had gathered in Bayfront Park to hear a speech by Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who in the previous November had won an overwhelming victory over President Herbert Hoover.

FDR had been on a fishing trip aboard the yacht Nourmahal as a guest of the elegant Vincent Astor, and when the yacht had docked at the Miami pier, local Democrats had asked the President-elect to say a few words to the citizenry in near-by Bayfront Park.

Living in Miami at the time was a 33-year-old immigrant from Italy named Giuseppe Zangara, who was obsessed with a hatred of authority, particularly as personified by heads of state. Zangara had been forced to go to work at the age of six, and all his adult life he blamed his lack of education on constituted authority -- beginning with the King of Italy.

Zangara made up his mind to go to Washington and assassinate President Hoover. It was not so much that he blamed Hoover for the depression; he merely felt the world would be better if there were fewer kings and presidents. But while he was waiting for spring to arrive in Washington, he read in a Miami paper that President-elect Roosevelt was coming to the city to make a speech.

For eight dollars he bought a .32 caliber revolver at a pawnshop, and on the night of February 15 he went out to Bayfront Park to use it on his fancied enemy.

When Zangara got there, the park already was jammed with people, although FDR would not be showing up for another hour and a half. The closest he could get to the spot where Roosevelt would speak from his automobile was a standing-room spot in an aisle about 15 feet to the rear of the front row.

Roosevelt's car drove into the amphitheater at about 9:30 o'clock. FDR was sitting in the rear seat and with him were Mayor R. B. Gautier of Miami and George E. Hussey, chairman of the Reception Committee. Behind Roosevelt's car was a touring car carrying Secret Service agents.

At a spot in front of the stage, about 25 feet from where Zangara was standing, FDR's car stopped and the President-elect hoisted himself up to the top of the rear seat to deliver his off-the-cuff speech. First, however, he waved to a man sitting with the big wheels on the stage and shouted an invitation,

"Come on down," FDR yelled to Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago. Cermak smiled and held up a finger signifying he would be down to greet Roosevelt when the latter had finished his speech.

Roosevelt's speech consisted of only 162 words and contained nothing more significant than the news that he had caught a lot of fish. When he finished, several newsreel men climbed on the runningboard of his car and pleaded with him to repeat his talk for their benefit. FDR refused to do so; instead he slid down onto the seat again.

Then he turned to greet Mayor Cermak, who had come down from the stage. The two shook hands and chatted for a few moments, and Mayor Cermak moved away toward the rear of the car.

Just then somebody handed Roosevelt one of those long telegrams signed with hundreds of names, and as FDR reached for it Zangara swung into action. Somebody had vacated a seat nearby. Zangara jumped aboard and, standing on the wobbly perch, started pressing the trigger of his revolver.

Five bullets spewed from the gun. One smashed into the right lung of Mayor Cermak and he slumped to the ground. Another struck a Miami woman in the stomach and she fell, too, seriously wounded. Three other persons, including a New York detective on vacation, were struck in the head but were not seriously hurt.

Roosevelt wrote a story about the shooting that was carried in various newspapers around the country. He reported that immediately after Zangara fired his last shot, the Secret Service agents ordered his chauffeur to drive out of the park.

"I called to the chauffeur to stop," wrote Roosevelt. "He did, about 15 feet from where we started. The Secret Service men shouted to him to get out of the crowd, and he started the car forward again. I stopped him a second time, this time at the corner of the bandstand, about 30 feet farther on."

"I saw Mayor Cermak being carried. I motioned to have him put in the back of the car. He was alive, but I didn't think he was going to last. I put my left arm around him and my hand on his pulse, but I couldn't find any pulse. He slumped forward. . . ."

"After we had gone another block, Mayor Cermak straightened up and I got his pulse. It was surprising. For three blocks I believed his heart had stopped. I held him all the way to the hospital, and his pulse constantly improved. . . ."

Meanwhile, police and SS men had seized Zangara and taken away his revolver. Then they threw him on the trunk rack of one of the cars in the Presidential procession and three policemen sat on him while the car bore him to jail.

Cermak died on March 6, three weeks after the shooting. Zangara died in the electric chair at the State Prison in Raiford, Florida, on March 20, only 33 days after his shooting spree.

Secret Service agents still suffer a little shiver of fright when they recall the Zangara attempt. Spontaneously conceived and haphazardly executed as it was, it nevertheless nearly succeeded. A better shot than the nervous Zangara undoubtedly would have managed at least to wound Roosevelt.

In contrast, Oscar Collazo and Griselio Torresola had virtually no chance of assassinating Harry S. Truman.

It is true that when they went after Truman, on that beautiful Indian-summer day in November,

1950, the Man from Independence was living in Blair House, diagonally across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, which was undergoing extensive repairs.

Unlike the White House, which is surrounded by a high iron picket fence, Blair House abuts a public sidewalk, with only a flight of 10 steps between its front door and the walk. Theoretically, a man can stand in the middle of Pennsylvania Avenue and send bullets whistling into Blair House's windows.

But there was a guard booth at each end of the house, on the sidewalk level. In each booth the assassins could expect to find at least one White House Police guard. Additionally, at least two and probably three or four Secret Service agents ordinarily would be lurking inside the house.

Collazo and Torresola had arrived in Washington from New York the night before the shooting and had taken two separate $3.50 rooms at a hotel near Union Station. Like Collazo, Torresola was a zealot of the Puerto Rican Nationalist party, but unlike Collazo, who was a model husband and father, Torresola was known as a ladies' man. He was also an expert marksman, whereas Collazo had never fired anything but a .22 rifle.

After casing Blair House from a cab on the morning of November 1, Collazo and Torresola had lunch and then returned to their hotel. There Torresola spent nearly an hour showing Collazo how to fire the German P138 revolver he had bought for him in New York. Torresola had a German Luger.

They left the hotel about 2 o'clock, their guns loaded and their pockets stuffed with cartridge clips, and took a cab to the Treasury Building on Pennsylvania Avenue, a block from Blair House.

The pair was determined to be professional about it. First they walked by Blair House for another look; by that time President Truman had had lunch and was napping in a second-floor front bedroom, but the conspirators had no way of knowing that.

Back in front of the Treasury Building, Collazo and Torresola separated. Collazo walked along the south side of Pennsylvania toward Blair House, while Torresola crossed the avenue and strode past the White House and the old State Department Building, now known as the Executive Offices Building. As Collazo approached the guard booth on the east end of Blair House, Torresola recrossed the avenue and started toward the booth on the west end of the building.

Collazo stopped in front of the Blair House steps. Standing on the first step, with his back to Collazo, was a White House policeman, Donald T. Birdzell. Collazo pulled out his gun, aimed it at Birdzell and squeezed the trigger. But the gun misfired, the only sound was a metallic click.

Birdzell wheeled and saw Collazo holding the gun in one hand and pounding it with another. As he did so, the gun fired and a bullet buried itself in Birdzell's right leg.

Birdzell scampered into the street as bullets sang about him. He drew his own gun and started firing back. Meanwhile, from the east booth, Collazo came under fire from two marksmen, White House Policeman Joseph O. Davidson and Secret Service Agent Floyd M. Boring.

But the steps are flanked by iron picket railings, and Boring's and Davidson's shot kept splattering against the pickets. As Collazo crouched on the second step, reloading, one bullet nicked his nose and another scratched his ear.

Torresola was busy, too. Walking up to the west guard booth, he stood in the doorway and pumped three shots into Private Leslie Coffelt of the White House Police. When Coffelt fell, Torresola turned and fired three times at another White House Policeman, Joseph H. Downs, standing near a basement door, and again every bullet hit its target.

Leaping a hedge, Torresola came to Collazo's aid. It was too late. With several guns barking at him, Collazo collapsed with a bullet in his chest and lay still on the sidewalk.

Torresola turned his gun on Birdzell, out in the street, and sent a bullet into the policeman's left knee. Then he crouched down and began reloading his gun. He never finished the job. Coffelt, although bleeding from mortal wounds, managed to take one last aim and pulled the trigger. Torresola seemed to shudder, then he dropped to the sidewalk, a fatal bullet in his brain.

Inside Blair House, Secret Service Agent Stewart Stout had grabbed a Thompson submachine gun from a cabinet and squatted down beside it in the hall to cover the elevator and stairs leading to the Truman bedroom. Truman, awakened by the shots, had reacted normally. He had rushed to the window just after Collazo fell but quickly retreated when a guard yelled to him, "Get back! Get back!"

Policeman Coffelt died in the hospital that afternoon, during an operation. Downs and Birdzell survived and so, amazingly, did Collazo. The bullet which struck him in the chest had been turned aside by the breastbone and, after passing through his right armpit, had buried itself in his right arm.

Collazo went on trial on February 27, 1951, in the United States District Court in Washington. He pleaded not guilty and insisted that he had come to Washington merely to "make a demonstration" and not to kill anybody. He refused to consider a suggestion by his counsel that he plead insanity. "This is not a farce," Collazo said quietly.

He was convicted on four counts involving the murder of Coffelt and assaults on the President, Birdzell and Downs. Judge T. Alan Goldsborough sentenced him to die in the electric chair for the Coffelt murder and for the assault on President Truman and, rather anticlimactically, sentenced him to serve from five to 15 years on each of the other two counts. Six months later Truman commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

BUFFALO GETS EDUCATIONAL TELEVISION

The National Broadcasting Company has offered to contribute television broadcasting equipment for a UHF educational station in Buffalo, N. Y. The equipment is part of the facilities of station WBUF, the NBC station which suspended operations in Buffalo last September. NBC will transfer the equipment to the Western New York Educational Association as soon as the latter receives a construction permit and is ready to proceed with construction.

When completed the new educational station will service Buffalo and western New York state. Since the former WBUF station was received in Warren with assistance by conversion, the county could enjoy reception from the new educational station, if it chose to do so. ***

GIRL SCOUT SERIES TO BE TELEVIEWED BY WJAC

"Adventuring In the Hand Arts", an educational series, will be presented by WJAC starting Saturday, November 22, at 1 p. m., and continuing through January 24. This is a special ten-week series produced by NBC and the Educational Television and Radio Center in cooperation with the Girl Scouts of the world.

The purpose of the series is to acquaint viewers with the various hand crafts which help to satisfy basic human needs, to stimulate the creative imagination and self activity of viewers, and to create a greater appreciation of contemporary cultures.

The hostess for the series will be Shari Lewis, one of TV's outstanding young personalities. Included on each program will be several Girl Scouts and guest experts from the fields of arts and crafts.

Two of the programs will be presented on Sundays at 1 p. m. Your Observer schedule will list the weekly dates. ***

JACKIE GLEASON departs from the comedy format of the "Jackie Gleason Show" on December 19 to present an all-musical program featuring excerpts from his latest albums of mood and jazz music.

SAYING NOTHING for a half hour will be the lot of Red Skelton when he does a pantomime show for CBS, November 25, 9:30 to 10 p. m. The only voice heard will be that of Art Gilmore in a few minutes of narration, and no doubt the commercial. Imagine a silent commercial? ***

Junior College Offered Warren County

(By Bob Walsh)

Because Pennsylvania has been dragging its educational feet in respect to junior college facilities it has been necessary for many Warren county men and women to utilize the Jamestown Community College. This actually has been a geographic break for this area. Few Pennsylvania residents are near enough to such a school to make attendance practical.

Now there is a possibility that Warren county can enjoy even greater privileges in the New York school. If we want to pay a small annual amount, our students may attend the Jamestown Community College for the same small tuition fee that is charged natives of New York state.

Today a Warren county student pays $540 a year to the Jamestown school for tuition. Residents of New York state pay only $270, or $135 a semester.

This can be made available to Warren county residents if we will pay our share of the per pupil cost. For example, forty Warren county boys and girls could attend this school at the low rate of $135 a semester if our county would pay about $10,000 a year.

There are many advantages in this plan. We would be enjoying the benefits of an investment that eventually will total several million dollars. Students who are not sure how much college they want or how long they will wish to go can gain much through the two-year junior college attendance.

The Jamestown Community College has gained national recognition and today the two years of study there earn the student sufficient credit to admit him to nearly all of the major universities for his remaining two years of specialized study.

Some day Pennsylvania may catch up with this advanced thinking, but even when it does there is some question whether the first junior colleges established will include one as close to Warren county as is Jamestown.

Under this plan, a student can live at home and actually drive no further to his classes than would be the case if he attended many colleges which are located in major cities. For $135 a semester, plus a bit for books he could reside at home and gain his first two years of college experience.

If he goes no further he receives credit for graduation from a two-year course and in many jobs this will be sufficient basic education for him to be in demand for on-the-job training. If he wishes to go farther his credits will make it easier for him to enter another college.

We suggest that Warren citizens representing the county educational system, the commissioners, Warren borough, and perhaps some major civic group sit down with New York officials and listen to their proposed plan. It costs nothing to listen and we know the Jamestown Community College administrators are very willing to talk about it.

Our geographical relationship is unique and we would be establishing a precedent with far-reaching effect. It would be a major step, and a very inexpensive step, forward for Warren county education.

We predict that the Jamestown Community College eventually will be a four-year school. And we also expect it to develop a physical plant that will compare with the best of small colleges. It is close enough to be a major asset to us, and we should not refuse any offers that will allow us to be a part of such progress.

TB TESTS. The Manteaux Tuberculin Test, which is claimed to be more accurate than the "patch" test, was administered to third grade pupils of Jefferson school Wednesday under the sponsorship of the Warren County Tuberculosis and Health Society. The tests, being given here to Mary Sandblade and Frederick Freeman by Dr. John Larson and Dr. Albert Eberly, are to detect TB and were administered on consent of the parents only.

In the background are (l. to r.) Fran Mader, nurse; Al Chiamonte, vice president; M. E. Jewell, treasurer; Mrs. M. E. Jewell, administrative secretary; Dr. Arthur Marceca, TB seal sale chairman; and Edward F. MacKendrick, executive secretary.

WHAT A SWITCH— THEY'RE PUTTING NATURAL GAS BACK IN TO THE GROUND!

IN THE SUMMER OF 1919, ONE OF THE FIRST UNDERGROUND GAS STORAGE PROJECTS IN THE NATION WAS STARTED AT MENIFEE, KENTUCKY. NATURAL GAS FROM OTHER AREAS WAS PUMPED IN AND STORED UNDERGROUND RIGHT IN THE MENIFEE GAS FIELD...AND USED TO HELP SUPPLY PEAK WINTER NEEDS OF NEARBY COMMUNITIES.

NOW, UNDERGROUND STORAGE IS AN ESSENTIAL FACTOR IN THE AVAILABILITY AND LOW COST OF GAS SUPPLIED TO HOMES AND INDUSTRY THROUGHOUT AMERICA'S ORIGINAL NATURAL GASLAND...THE SEVEN-STATE AREA IN WHICH YOUR GAS COMPANY AND THE OTHER MEMBERS OF THE COLUMBIA GAS SYSTEM SERVE—AN AREA THAT IS FORTUNATE IN HAVING MORE STORAGE SPACE THAN ANYWHERE ELSE IN THE NATION. COLUMBIA GAS SYSTEM MAINTAINS ONE-FOURTH OF ALL THE UNDERGROUND STORAGE GAS IN THE COUNTRY—FOR THE USE OF 12½ MILLION PEOPLE IN AN AREA WHERE NATURAL GAS IS THE PREFERRED FUEL FOR HOME AND INDUSTRY.

Television and Radio

By John Crosby

GRISLY, BUT GOOD

"Conquest," that splendid CBS-TV science program, has fortunately survived its first year, which in all programs of this kind is the risky interval, and is safely embarked now on its second year. The first of these programs last Sunday grappled with new discoveries in the human brain and was the most interesting and sophisticated of any "Conquest" program I have seen.

I use the word "sophisticated" gingerly. I mean simply that the techniques of discussing and explaining difficult scientific advances is being handled easily and colloquially without any loss of precision. That is a very great feat. There seemed to me to be a bolder, sharper direction, too. The preparation for a brain operation on an epileptic, for example, shifted from the operating table where the brain lay exposed in the conscious and talking patient to Eric Sevareid and a guide watching from overhead -- back and forth in a thoroughly professional manner.

In this age of monster pictures, this was a real scary one because it was actual. A doctor with a low voltage needle "stimulated" certain parts of the conscious patient's brain to discover what parts of the body they controlled. "Why," asked Sevareid, "do you have to re-map, re-chart, every individual brain? Aren't they all alike?" His guide, Dr. Robert Livingston, explained: "One brain is not exactly like another any more than our faces are exactly alike."

Just then the needle activated an old memory of music in the patient's brain which I found truly alarming. If the doctors can monkey with our memories . . . Actually, it got worse. The demonstrations moved into the brains of cats and rats that had electrodes planted deeply into them.

First, a cat was awakened by stimulating the proper part of the brain. "Sleep, wakefulness, alertness, attention -- these functions were the business primarily of the psychologist previously, explained Dr. Livingston. "Now we know that certain brain mechanisms are linked to these and we can work together with the psychologist to explore them."

After that, things got much more complicated and, to me, progressively more alarming. A rat was shown running from one end of a maze to another, getting more and more adept at finding his way, simply to give himself the thrill of stimulating his brain. Said the researcher: "We wanted to find just how much punishment we could make a rat take in order to stimulate his brain." A grid was electrified. Rats, explained the researcher, Jim Olds, would starve to death rather than take such an electrical shock to get to food -- but this rat, after recoiling just once, crossed the grid several times to stimulate his brain. What sort of thrill do you suppose brain stimulation is in order to drive the rat to do that? It's all a little like something out of Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World."

The second part of the hour-long show was an examination of the power of waves and how to adjust both ships and shoreline to live with it and to fight back. This didn't have quite the ghoulish impact of the bit about monkeying with our minds but it was, I thought, an absolutely first-rate job of photographing, cutting, and editing a difficult scientific subject. Waves, incidentally, are very photogenic when the sea kicks up and there were some wonderful shots showing the tremendous power of an angry sea.

Your perfect educational show should mix show business with genuine information. It should be important enough information to warrant the attention of a network (to say nothing of your and my attention); it should be clear without stooping to first grade terminology to make it so. I can't pretend that "Conquest" has always done this. Come to think of it, I'm not sure it ever has before this program.

There's a narrow line between education and sensation for its own sake and it's sometimes hard to know which side you're on. Not long ago the Westinghouse Station in San Francisco, KPIX, televised a live heart operation on "little Tommy" Hunter and got deluged with 50,000 letters, most of them approving. Electrodes in cat's brains I find grisly but educational; heart operations on "little Tommy" I find just plain grisly without any compensating reason for being in my living room.

ONE BILLION DOLLARS has been earned by the national forests in the past fifty-three years, and above we find the event recognized through a check handed District Ranger Larry Stotz by Jerry Spetz, local pulpwood operator. The official date for the billionth dollar is November 21. During the past fiscal year the Allegheny National forest has contributed $266,172 toward the total figure, and at this earning rate it is obvious that the second billion dollars will accumulate in less than ten years. The national receipts at this time top $111 million dollars.

EVALUATION DISCUSSED BY N. A. BOARD

The Northern Area Joint School Board met last week and voted to authorize and encourage all the schools of the Northern Area system to work on the official evaluation of their own building. Such a program is a preliminary step in preparing for an official rating committee of the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, a report from which will produce a guide to improving the school program. Mrs. Margaret Arthur was engaged as a substitute teacher at Russell grade school, the possibility of adding a full-time teacher at Sugar Grove elementary was considered, and it was learned that parents at Lander Grade School will assist during lunch and playground hours to permit teachers to use their time in other professional pursuits. It was decided to authorize the school solicitor to conclude the purchase of a perpetual right of way across the farm of Ralph Shaffer as a means of reaching the area which the state has approved for use in expanding the sewage disposal area of Eisenhower school. The school administration was authorized to plan a series of special activity benefits to help raise and replace funds lost in the recent burglary of the school. Bills approved were $7,962, secondary schools, and $5,614, elementary schools. GET THAT BIRD

If you want a wild turkey on your table Thanksgiving Day you have only a pair of days left in which to shoot one. The season ends Saturday, a week previous to the termination of most small game hunting.

The turkeys were not expected to be quite as prevalent this year, but the kill hasn't hurt them much. However, the last week may see more effort expended by what has been described as a lazy horde of hunters this fall. There are plenty of big birds in the wild backwoods, but most of the nimrods show no inclination to work for their game.

There is a tendency on the part of many hunters these days to park their cars and work quite close to the road. They shun long treks into rough country. And that is where a big share of your wild turkeys are, safe and unshot at.

This doesn't mean there are no turkeys in open country. But they are being hunted there and the competition is greater. The big push may be made this week as many desperately seek the bird for their holiday platter.

HOW THEY ARE SPENDING IT

The taxpayer often asks where the money goes and occasionally we find it easy to answer. Pennsylvania received over $600 thousand dollars from the federal government to be spent on wildlife during the 1958-59 fiscal year. This money comes from a 11 per cent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, and is apportioned to the states on the basis of hunting license sales.

After projects are approved the federal money is allocated to the extent of 75 per cent of the costs. The state will spend a total of $939,868.50 during the current fiscal year with this kind of help.

The money will be used as follows: $75,602 for land acquisition including the purchase of 950 acres of land in the Pymatuning area for marsh development in the waterfowl program. Other land to be purchased includes 8,352 acres in the Pike county Shohola tract, 902 acres in McKean county Robwood mountain tract, an island in the Susquehanna river south of Selinsgrove, and Splash Dam Pond in Sullivan county to flood 85 acres of state land.

Another $52,586.25 will go for seven research projects; Evaluation of the habitat development for wildlife; wild turkeys, white-tailed deer; right-of-way management; experimental management of the Conemaugh river reservoir, waterfowl banding and woodcock management.

The biggest amount, $615,000, will be spent on food and cover developments for wildlife on state game lands and farm-game projects.

NMATES EXCLUDED

An unusual hunt will occur in Center county during the antlerless deer season. Five hundred hunters holding Center county antlerless permits will be allowed to hunt on the state penitentiary grounds at Rockview. The deer have become a problem and a hazard. Prisoners will be excluded from participating in the housecleaning of their grounds for reasons that probably are apparent.

THE BIG ONES

The animal that most big game hunters choose to bring in while tramping the woodlands of Pennsylvania will become legal game Monday when the big black bear is the objective. (And you will see some of those turkeys about which we spoke.) The season runs from November 24 to 29.

The Game Commission says the bear's usefulness can be itemized as follows: The sport it provides, the hide, and the meat. We will add pride as further stimulant. Most hunters would like to say they have brought down a bear.

The reason is obvious. Anyone may get a deer. They are so thick that the odds favor your seeing one in either of the two seasons. There really is less credit for getting one than there is discredit for failure.

But the bear requires some hunting, with luck not playing quite so major a role, though it always has much to do with results in a heavily hunted area. The right guy at the place at the right time may enjoy the fruits of others who kick game loose.

Because food has been plentiful this year it is not expected that the bruins will have done much traveling and if you have spotted them this fall or late summer they still may be not far away. This suggests that there may be some in what normally is considered "civilized" country in Warren county. In fact we know of three bears which were seen this past year on the very eastern edge of Warren borough.

But the small game hunting may have given them enough fright to send them hustling for deeper cover and they may be much more wary than earlier in the season. Especially is this true of the ones you want, the bigger and older bears who have some idea of what a gunshot means.

At this writing the weather had continued warm and wet for several days. Barring a change to snow, this will favor the bear. Snow makes him easy to track and to see.

As for the hunter he should remember that the big animal has poor eyes and red cover will not alert him. But it will be more easily seen by the much more dangerous hunter who shoots at anything that moves. Make sure your bear is legal. Try for a big one and have an animal of which you can be rightfully proud.
